PEACE WITH UNION.

A correspondent of the New York Herald has been on a visit to the rebel agents at Niagara Falls, and thus gives his impression of "the situation."

"Next to the condition of peace, although nothing of the kind has transpired in their consultations with Greely, I can safely say that as far as the South, the rebel States will refer to the Union upon the basis of State sovereignty, each State to manage its own social institutions, the restoration of personal rights; let by gones be gones; where slavery is wiped out, let it go. On other words they intend to take the principles of the Kansas and Nebraska bill, applied to States as well as to Territories. Whether these sentiments in this speak the sentiments of the Southern Confederacy I leave others to judge. They have much in regard to this that can be gathered."

"Greely is so convinced that an opportunity has offered itself to bring about an adjustment that would not be humiliating to either section, and stop the enormous sacrifice of life and treasure, that he left the impression here that he would no longer support the Administration. Look out for squalls in the Atlantic faces. That is the main reason that they hold the majority of the states of the Confederacy and that they can't prevent Greely using it against Lincoln. If this is true, it explains why Greely takes one thing privately and another in the Atlantic. He may under this pressure leave the concern."

The Campaign in Indiana—The political campaign in the State of Indiana has opened vigorously. The Democracy have nearly all their candidates to Congress in the field, and from the stump they are casting off the mask of Abolitionists, and showing its sordid and unwholesome purpose. Governor Morton is terribly alarmed, and will make a desperate effort to retain his place; but the sovereigns of the Hoosier State, on the second Tuesday of October, will hustle him into the charred house of repudiated politicians. Indiana is democratic to the core, and leads the advance in the grand campaign against the Lincoln hordes of office holders and public plunderers.

"One year or so ago it was a common practice of local newspapers, orators, and preachers to argue that when slavery was abolished the freed black men and women would remain in the South, and could not possibly seek the North to degrade labor and reduce wages by a lower competition. What are the facts now? As every Democratic paper said, negroes—male and female—retiring to the North, and are importuned by local slaves to do their work at a cheaper rate than white men can be forced for. Negroes are taking the places of whites wherever they can be made available, and even the government is forming colonies of them and supporting them at the expense of the suffering widows and orphans of dead soldiers."

There can be but two live parties in 1864. The one is for the country and the whole country, and the Constitution and the whole Constitution. The other is for Union with abolition, or for division without peace. men, war-mongers, men of every shade of opinion can stand upon the former platform. Secessionists South, upon Abolitionists North, necessarily stand upon the other. The County Superintendent will be present by order of the Board, JOS. THOMAS GRIEST, Secy. Aug. 1, 1864. 3d.

Teachers Wanted.

THE School Director of Hamilton township, in particular, the Public School House, in particular, on THURSDAY, the 30th instant, at 2 o'clock, A. M., to employ 10 Teachers to take charge of the Schools of said district for the ensuing term of five months. Liberal wages will be paid according to grade of certificate and size of schools. All applicants must be present in person. The Board wish to procure the services of experienced Teachers.

The County Superintendent will be present to examine applicants. By order of the Board, DANIEL EICHART, Secy.

These liquors are of various degrees, ranging up to the highest; so that all tastes may be satisfied.

SOLD WHOLESALE AND RETAIL. Pure French Brandy and old Rye Whiskey for medical purposes can at all times be had.

The above liquors have been purchased at the best and most reliable houses and can therefore be recommended with safety, and will be sold at the lowest prices. Landlords and Country Merchants will find it to their interest to examine our stock before purchase elsewhere. With large sales we can sell at small profits.

The Grocery, Flour and Feed and Nutrition business continued—with full assortments in each department. [May 20, 1864. 3d.]

KENTUCKY ELECTION.

According to intelligence contained in the Ohio Statesman, the Democrats have swept the State. This may also be inferred from the reports that have come up from the Abolitionists' candidates at Cincinnati, that a general law had been proclaimed over the State, and the Abolitionists supposed that under its benign influences they could easily achieve a victory, even though they knew themselves to be in a contemptible minority? And then, General Burnside also came to their aid, throughout his entire authority, with his military orders, prohibiting candidates that he did not want elected, and refusing to let their names appear on the poll-book—as in the case of Judge Duvall in the District of the Appellate Court opposite Cincinnati. But it seems the Democrats were not to be put down this time in any such manner. Noticing daunted, they sent George Robertson of Lexington to the polls, and their candidate, M. M. Benton, of Covington. It is intimated that an attempt will be made to prohibit the Judge from entering upon the discharge of his duties. We hope nothing of the sort will be done. The people who elected him will be responsible for it, if he is induced into office. Patrick & Union.

Sen. Sumner says that "the people intended to be taxed," but, if the demand is refused, we don't believe they will get up a mob about it.

Benton, of Covington. It is intimated that an attempt will be made to prohibit the Judge from entering upon the discharge of his duties. We hope nothing of the sort will be done. The people who elected him will be responsible for it, if he is induced into office. Patrick & Union.

Sen. Sumner says that "the people intended to be taxed," but, if the demand is refused, we don't believe they will get up a mob about it.

According to intelligence contained in the Ohio Statesman, the Democrats have swept the State. This may also be inferred from the reports that have come up from the Abolitionists' candidates at Cincinnati, that a general law had been proclaimed over the State, and the Abolitionists supposed that under its benign influences they could easily achieve a victory, even though they knew themselves to be in a contemptible minority? And then, General Burnside also came to their aid, throughout his entire authority, with his military orders, prohibiting candidates that he did not want elected, and refusing to let their names appear on the poll-book—as in the case of Judge Duvall in the District of the Appellate Court opposite Cincinnati. But it seems the Democrats were not to be put down this time in any such manner. Noticing daunted, they sent George Robertson of Lexington to the polls, and their candidate, M. M. Benton, of Covington. It is intimated that an attempt will be made to prohibit the Judge from entering upon the discharge of his duties. We hope nothing of the sort will be done. The people who elected him will be responsible for it, if he is induced into office. Patrick & Union.

MAJOR GENERAL BUELL.

Below we publish a few extracts from the noble and fearless letter of Maj. Gen. D. C. Buell. The sentiments are the most conscientious convictions of a tried and gallant soldier; and, as we believe and Gen. Buell himself, a revelation, an unfolding as it were, of the real sympathy of the best soldiers now in our service with the cause of constitutional liberty. The letter was addressed to a friend by whose permission it was printed:—

BEDFORD SPRINGS, Pa., July 10, 1864.

DEAR SIR:—The public have now no official announcement of the fact—though it is no doubt by this time very generally known—that I have resigned my commission in the army. I have several times since been assured that my personal friends, and many without the claim of personal acquaintance have taken an interest in my official career, feel that some explanation of the circumstances and motives of my action is due to them. Accepting this claim upon me, I have already answereed some of my friends in substance as I do now.

The impulse of most men would oppose my course in this matter, if it even rested on no other ground than a determination not to acquiesce in any measure that would degrade me; but I had a higher motive than that. I believed that the policy and means with which the war was being prosecuted was discreditable to the nation, and a stain upon civilization; and that they would not only fail to restore the Union, if indeed they had not already rendered its restoration impossible, but that their tendency was to subvert the institution under which the country had realized unexampled prosperity and happiness; and to such a work, I could not lend my hand.

While there may have been more or less of personal ambition mixed up in the movement of secession, it is, I trust, most generally in the management of political affairs, yet I do not doubt that it was mainly done by men of honest conviction in the minds of those who engaged in it that the control of the Government had passed permanently into the hands of a sectional party which would soon tamper on the political rights of the South. This apprehension was shared in by a very large portion of the people who did not favor secession, and who were present, including the prisoners themselves.

In private conversation, and on many occasions in public, in the presence of citizens of all shades of opinion, Gen. Early intimated that he would frequently visit Maryland and Pennsylvania, and that he would pursue the war of retaliation as long as it might be as circumstances might require.

RETALIATION.

(From the Boston Courier.) Everybody will be struck with sorrow at the destruction of the pleasant and thriving town of Chambersburg. It enables us here in the North to appreciate better than before the reality of war, and to comprehend the devastation and suffering which it has spread over the once fair and prosperous country of the South. To read, ourselves, sitting in safety, of the destruction of Southern cities, villages, and plantations; of the glorious success of the Federal armies in reducing half a State to the condition of a desert waste, was exhilarating, perhaps. “Poor devils, why did they rebel? and what rights has a rebel, or his helpless family, which a loyal soldier is bound to respect?”

Recently they have burned the residence of Andrew Hunter, near Chambersburg, in all its contents, requiring his family to stand by and witness the destruction of their home. They did the same with the house of Edmund J. Lee, near Shepherdstown, and repeated it on the buildings of General Alexander H. Battle.

Such things cannot be long endured, and must provoke retaliation whenever it is possible. Accordingly I lately sent a few horses for the neighbors on the share to furnish shoes for the poor women and children who were necessarily left there, who had been left by the army, and the half-tanned skins drawn from the vats and cut into narrow strips to prevent the possibility of their being used.

VARIOUS.

PEACE WITH UNION.

A correspondent of the New York Herald has been on a visit to the rebel agents at Niagara Falls, and thus gives his impression of "the situation."

In regard to the condition of peace, although nothing of the kind has been said in their consultations with Greeley, I can safely say that a far more than representative will speak for the South. The rebel States will return to the Union upon the basis of State sovereignty, each State to manage its own social institutions; the restoration of personal rights, let by gones; where slavery is wiped out, let it go. Or, in other words they propose to take the principles of the Kansas-Nebraska bill applied to States as well as to Territories. Whether these gentlemen in this speak the sentiments of the Southern Confederacy I leave others to judge. They know as much in regard to that as can be gathered here.

Greeley is so convinced that an opportunity has offered itself to bring about an adjustment that would not be humiliating to either section, and stop the enormous sacrifice of life and treasure, that he left the impression here that he would no longer support the Administration. Look out for squalls in the Triangle of Fire. The Seward men claim that they hold the majority of the stock of the Triangle and that they can prevent Greeley using it against him.

It is this that explains why Greeley tasks one thing privately and another in the Triangle. He may under this pressure leave the concern."

THE CAMPAIGN IN INDIA.—The political campaign in the State of Indiana has opened vigorously. The Democratic have nearly all their candidates for Congress in the field, and from the signs they are setting off the banner of Abolitionism, and showing its sinister countenance, and its insidious and unholy purpose. Covering Motions is terribly alarmed, and will make a desperate effort to retain his place; but the sovereigns of the Poor State, on the second Tuesday of October, will hustle him into the chair of Louis of repudiated politicians. Indiana is Democratic to the core, and leads the advance in the grand campaign against the Lincoln horde of office holders and public plunderers.

One year or so ago it was a common practice of "loyal" newspapers, orators and preachers to argue that when slavery was abolished the freed black men and women would remain in the South, and could not possibly seek the North to degrade labor and reduce wages by a lower competition. What are the facts now? At every Democratic paper said, negroes—male and female—are running to the North, and are importuned by "loyal" shoddy farmers and employers to do their work at a cheaper rate than white men can be secured for. Negroes are taking the places of whites wherever they can be made available, and even "the government" is forming colonies of them, and supporting them at the expense of the suffering widows and orphans of dead soldiers.

There can be but two parties in 1864. The one is for the country and the whole country, and the Constitution and the whole Constitution. The other is for Union with abolition, or for disunion without it. Peace men, war men, patriotic men of every shade of opinion, can stand upon the former platform. Secessionists south, and Abolitionists North, necessarily stand upon the other.

We call all malcontents malcontents, who are not content to make the Constitution of the United States, in its letter and spirit, the basis of all settlements. All beyond this, on either side, looks to prolonged war and final anarchy.—A. T. Hayes.

KENTUCKY ELECTION.

According to intelligence contained in the Ohio Statesman, the Democracy have swept the State. This may also be inferred from the pitiful howls that comes up from the Abolition newsmongers at Cincinnati. Martial law had been proclaimed over the State, and the Abolitionists supposed that their friends' bonhomie influences they could easily achieve a victory, even though they knew themselves to be in a contemptible minority? And then, General Burnside also came to their aid, throughout his entire army, with his military orders, proscribing candidates that he didn't want elected, and refusing to let their names appear on the ballot—as in the case of the Judge Duvall, in the District of the Appellate Court, opposite Cincinnati. But it seems the Democrats were not to be put down this time in any such manner. Nothing daunted, they put George Robertson, of Lexington, on the track as their candidate the day before the election, and when it was too late for Burnside, the military general to suppress him. The result is, that Robertson has nearly three thousand over his Abolition competitor, M. M. Benton, of Lexington. It is intimated that an attempt will be made to prohibit the Judge from entering upon the discharge of his duties. We hope nothing of the sort will be done. The people who elected will, of course, see to it that he is induced into office, as far as possible.
